INTRODUCTION

California, a magic word for many, has always attracted more than its share of news publicity. Serious studies have also been completed on this trend-setting state, the most overlooked being master's theses and doctoral dissertations. These unpublished works add much to knowledge, yet easy bibliographic access has not formerly been available. This bibliography has been compiled in the hopes that it will bring the dissertations and theses completed in the field of geography to the attention of geographers, planners, researchers and others interested in the "Golden State".

California: A Bibliography of Theses and Dissertations in Geography has been arranged according to the following 17 subject classifications: A. Agricultural Geography (including fruits, dairy products, agricultural industry, etc.) B. Climatology C. Cultural Geography D. Economic Geography (including trade, etc.) E. General Geography F. Historical Geography G. Industrial Geography (including manufacturing geography, industrial location, etc.) H. Land Use Studies (both urban and rural. This topic is closely related to the Agricultural Geography, Settlement Geography and Urban Geography classification.) I. Natural Resources (including water, air, fisheries, wild animals, extractive industries e.g. lumber and petroleum, etc.) J. Physical Geography (including geomorphology, soils, plant geography, etc.) K. Political Geography L. Population Geography (including population migration, etc. This topic is closely related to the Settlement Geography classification.) M. Recreational Geography (including tourism, national parks, etc.) N. Settlement Geography (This topic is closely related to the Historical Geography, Land Use Studies and Population Geography classifications.) O. Transportation Geography (including roads, highways, the geography of ports, airports, etc.) P. Urban Geography (including urban planning, housing, CBD, etc.) Q. Not Elsewhere Classified (e.g. electric power studies, etc.)

Within each of the 17 subject classifications the dissertations and theses have been further subdivided into one of the following area designations: 1. California (for works which analyse the entire state) 2. Northern California (which comprises the following nine counties: Del Norte, Humboldt, Lassen, Modoc, Plumas, Shasta, Siskiyou, Tehama, Trinity.) 3. Central California (which comprises the following forty-one counties: Alameda, Alpine, Amador, Butte, Calaveras, Colusa, Contra Costa, El Dorado, Fresno, Glenn, Inyo, Kern, Kings, Lake, Madera, Marin, Mariposa, Mendocino, Merced, Mono, Monterey, Napa, Nevada, Placer, Sacramento, San Benito, San Francisco, San Joaquin, San Luis Obispo, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz, Sierra, Solano, Sonoma, Stanislaus, Sutter, Tulare, Tuolumne, Yolo, Yuba.) 4. Southern California (which comprises the following eight counties: Imperial, Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego, Santa Barbara, Ventura.)

Author, title, degree granting institution, date and degree earned are provided for each entry with an author index concluding the work. The theses and dissertations have been classed solely on the basis of title. If a title falls equally within two categories, it is entered under both for easier access. Only English language works completed in the United States have been considered for inclusion: the majority are available on microfilm or through interlibrary loan. The time span is 1950 to the present.

A minor technical problem has arisen due to a name change in 1972 of some of the larger California State Colleges to "University". Hence the earlier theses awarded will have the former school name whereas the later works will reflect the newer name (i.e. Fresno State College to California State University, Fresno). The most radical name change in the California State University and College system is San Fernando Valley State College to California State University, Northridge.

As can be verified by the entries, the majority of dissertations and theses were written in California institutions. Agricultural Geography has proven to be the topic most written about with Urban Geography in a strong second position. California has been interesting to compile and it is hoped that we can look forward to many future dissertations and theses on California geography.
